SOCIETIES AND NOT-FOR-PROFIT

The lawyers at RBS assist societies and not-for-profits of all sizes. Whether you are looking to establish a small grassroots organization or are responsible for a large institution with thousands of employees, contact the firm and allow its lawyers to guide you through any legal matters affecting your organization.

The Societies and Not-for-Profit Group creates and structures societies in British Columbia and federal not-for-profit corporations. Its lawyers help organizations to deal with the Charities Directorate when applying to become a registered charity. The firm also assists organizations with all manner of governance matters including disputes that might arise between competing organizations or within the organization itself.

Many of Societies and Not-for-Profit Group's lawyers serve on corporate boards and committees, which provides an important perspective to the advice that it can offer to not-for-profit clients.

Whatever the issue affecting your organization, contact RBS and allow the Societies and Not-for-Profit Group's lawyers to discuss how they can assist.
